By Sean Delaney

Shelby Township will put its best foot forward when Shelby Township Supervisor Richard Stathakis gives his annual State of the Township address on July 13.

The address, which regularly touts the township's successes and goals for the future, is hosted by the Macomb County Chamber of Commerce. The event will start at 8:15 a.m. July 13 at the Palazzo Grande at 54660 Van Dyke in Shelby Township.

"We have an amazing community, and we have a lot to be proud of," Stathakis said. "I really appreciate the Macomb County Chamber of Commerce making this possible. It is a fantastic opportunity to brag a little more about our terrific township."

During the address Stathakis said he will highlight the township's progress on its annual priorities, which are set by surveys from the Board of Trustees, township department heads and township residents.

"We're a little unique in Shelby Township in that we give our board, our employees and our residents a chance, every year, to dictate the path of our government," Stathakis said of the annual visioning process that sets the priorities. "Since those who participated in the visioning volunteered their time to give us some feedback, I'd like to use this forum as an opportunity to update them on our success."

Another portion of the supervisor's address will be to recognize individuals from the community that have worked to make the township "a better place."

According to Stathakis, individuals representing four categories will be recognized for making the township "A Better Place To Do Business," "A Better Place To Live," "A Better Place to Learn" and "A Better Place To Play."

"We have a lot of things going for us here in Shelby Township such as our parks, our stable, conservative board and our growing tax base, but what sets Shelby Township apart are the people in our community," Stathakis said. "We would not have amazing news to share with the world if we did not have even more amazing people making it happen."
